Clint Hohenstein 2018

My process is a jumble of experience, sketching, coloring, building, composing, drawing and painting. I also take notes that are fragments of lyrical poetry or stories and compose music. If I feel and think an artistic idea I will usually laugh or cry and then go on. But some ideas present themselves again and again. I will stop and write, draw, sing, dance, whatever it is and then I feel better because I don't have be the custodian of that concept in my brain. Is that art? I try to live in a positive, compassionate, peaceful emotion and context, because among other reasons, that contributes to the production of pleasing art.
