To Whom it May Concern:

Any traumatized animal needs quiet and a soft place to heal--a sanctuary, while finding a home is the ultimate goal.

To have an industrial heavy metal manufacturing plant just next door is just the VERY opposite of what these vulnerable creatures need or want, not to mention unfavorable to the nearby environment and PUBLIC! This is a crazy situation to allow.

I think it's heartless, senseless and stupid. And If more Reno citizens about knew this plan, there would be much more uproar! I don't do social media but I surely believe that this is the wrong way to proceed.

Another location should be found for doing business for Reno Iron Works. What...you can't find another much more suitable location in all of Reno????

I am staunchly against hurting any animal in any possible way. That would be eventual in this case.

Please stop this from happening. Find another location for that business!

Thank you for your time.

Your Comment	Hello Reno City Council, we would like to apologize for our absence at today's meeting. Unfortunately due to late notice, we were not able to represent our organization in person today. Our names are Beau Oster and Joey Pagan and we are a part of Camp Kesem at the University of Nevada, Reno. Camp Kesem is a national non-profit organization with chapters hosted at various universities across the nation. Our mission is to support children through and beyond a parent's cancer diagnosis. We provide a free weeklong summer camp for kids to connect with others going through similar experiences, and provide an opportunity for kids to have fun outside of a potentially stressful home environment. Throughout the year we support our campers with birthday cards, friends and family days, and virtual cabin chats. Kesem at the University of Nevada, Reno is a new chapter founded in 2020, and we hosted our very first camp this past summer for 20 campers. As a local non-profit based at the University of Nevada, Reno we aim to support children from the Northern Nevada community, directly making an impact on the lives of children across Reno, Nevada. The generous donation from Mayor

Hillary Schieve and the Reno City Council will allow us to expand our services and fully fund a child for camp this summer. Additionally, we would like to invite Mayor Schieve and City Council Members to our first annual Make the Magic gala event on April 15th where you can learn more about Kesem and connect with the families we serve! Again, thank you so much for supporting our chapter, we are grateful to be a part of an amazing community that supports each other.
Kesem Love, Beau and Joey
